Michael Gonzales is a litigator who focuses his practice on representing corporate policyholders in complex coverage litigation involving a variety of insurance coverage products. He relies on his extensive insurance experience to provide strategic representation both pre-suit and throughout litigation. Prior to joining the firm, Michael worked as a litigation attorney and then corporate counsel for a privately held company and its enterprise affiliates. Michael's corporate experience, coupled with his extensive litigation experience, enables him to better understand his client's goals and representation needs.

Michael's insurance coverage experience includes first party and third-party coverages, and encompasses professional liability policies, commercial general liability policies, first party property policies, business interruption coverage, pollution liability policies, and directors and officers policies. His experience also includes primary, excess, and umbrella coverages and litigation involving complicated long-tail liability claims. Earlier in his career, Michael advised global insurance companies on policy coverage issues, including drafting policy language for new and existing products and assisting with priority of coverage disputes.

In addition to his insurance coverage litigation and coverage counseling practice, Michael also has experience representing managing general agents, third-party administrators, real estate brokers, insurance brokers, financial planners, and attorneys in litigation involving alleged negligence, breach of fiduciary duties, breach of contract, and malpractice.

While serving as a director and corporate counsel, Michael gained considerable experience with corporate governance, and in-house litigation management (consumer and corporate insurance dockets), as well as advising C-suite personnel and board members on litigation and regulatory risk management. Michael was also the lead attorney for two of the company's affiliated insurance entities and assisted with regulatory, transactional and reinsurance matters.

Prior to law school, Michael worked as an insurance underwriter for one of the largest property and casualty carriers in the United States. Through this experience, he gained particular interest in understanding how coverages were litigated. This fueled Michael's interest in insurance coverage litigation and coverage counseling.

Outside of work, Michael spends time with his family and serves on the board of directors for SPCA, one of the largest animal welfare non-profits in the country.
